EXTENDED WRITING: MONEY AND VALUES

B2 | Adults / Teens | Discussion Writing | 20–30 minutes | Set 2

Possible B2 answers: Notice how each response gives a clear idea and support.

1. Is money the root of all evil?

Example: A developed answer about money and values could explain a personal view, give a clear reason and include a relevant example.

2. Can money buy happiness?

Example: In my view, money and values is important because it affects everyday decisions and relationships. Context often matters more than one simple rule.

3. What things cannot be bought with money?

Example: I would consider both the advantages and possible difficulties before reaching a conclusion. Listening to other perspectives can improve the discussion.

4. What is the most money you have wasted?

Example: This can vary greatly between individuals and cultures. A thoughtful answer should avoid assumptions and explain its reasoning.

5. Is it immoral to be a billionaire?

Example: I think practical support and honest communication are usually more useful than quick judgement. Small actions can make a meaningful difference.

6. What would you do if you were extremely wealthy?

Example: Experience has taught me that long-term habits matter more than a single moment. It helps to set realistic goals and review progress.

7. Is greed ever useful?

Example: A good example would show how values and circumstances can shape a person's choices. There is rarely only one acceptable answer.

8. Can society function without money?

Example: Overall, I would try to respond with empathy and evidence. That approach leads to a more balanced and useful conclusion.
