

EXTENDED WRITING: FATHERS AND FAMILIES

B2 | Adults / Teens | Discussion Writing | 20–30 minutes | Set 2

Write developed answers. Support your ideas with reasons, examples, or a personal experience.

1. Tell me about a father figure in your life.

2. In what ways are you similar to your father or a parent?

3. What are the hardest parts of being a father?

4. What makes a good role model for fathers?

5. What are advantages of different family structures?

6. How has the role of fathers changed?

7. Who is an important father figure in your country's history?

8. What did your family teach you about raising children?

EXTENDED WRITING: FATHERS AND FAMILIES

B2 | Adults / Teens | Discussion Writing | 20–30 minutes | Set 2

Possible B2 answers: Notice how each response gives a clear idea and support.

1. Tell me about a father figure in your life.

Example: A developed answer about fathers and families could explain a personal view, give a clear reason and include a relevant example.

2. In what ways are you similar to your father or a parent?

Example: In my view, fathers and families is important because it affects everyday decisions and relationships. Context often matters more than one simple rule.

3. What are the hardest parts of being a father?

Example: I would consider both the advantages and possible difficulties before reaching a conclusion. Listening to other perspectives can improve the discussion.

4. What makes a good role model for fathers?

Example: This can vary greatly between individuals and cultures. A thoughtful answer should avoid assumptions and explain its reasoning.

5. What are advantages of different family structures?

Example: I think practical support and honest communication are usually more useful than quick judgement. Small actions can make a meaningful difference.

6. How has the role of fathers changed?

Example: Experience has taught me that long-term habits matter more than a single moment. It helps to set realistic goals and review progress.

7. Who is an important father figure in your country's history?

Example: A good example would show how values and circumstances can shape a person's choices. There is rarely only one acceptable answer.

8. What did your family teach you about raising children?

Example: Overall, I would try to respond with empathy and evidence. That approach leads to a more balanced and useful conclusion.
